

Photos by Senior Airman Kenneth Kenemmer

Right, two HH-60G Pave Hawk helicopters from the 66th Rescue Squadron land during a training exercise at Nellis. While deployed to Turkey, the squadron will be supporting Operation Northern Watch, enforcing the no-fly zone over Northern Iraq. Below right, members of the 66th RQS load their gear on a C-5 Galaxy from the 60th Air Wing from Travis Air Force Base, Calif.

File photo

The 66th to the rescue

Above left, members of the 66th Rescue Squadron form a line to speed the loading of their gear on the C-5 Galaxy. The 58 members of the squadron who deployed will be "out of pocket" for 120 days in Turkey.

Left, Senior Airmen Chris Davis and Rob Sanders, both pararescuemen with the 66th RQS, wait patiently before boarding the aircraft. "PJs" are trained to perform rescues in a wide variety of environments. For details on their job, see www.pararescue.com.

Below, The green feet signify the Jolly Green Giant, the nickname of the HH-60G Pave Hawk Helicopters flown by the 66th RQS.

